Have you ever had an unpleasant experience related to waste disposal, be it at home, at work or in public places? In our daily lives, nobody relish the prospect of being surrounded by mess and rubbish, yet we are forced to put up with what seems to be unavoidable mess each day. Take for example household waste. Household waste is usually collected in a certain area and later transported to a dumping site. The same goes for refuse in offices and public places like shopping malls. At a certain time everyday, there will be cleaners who will make their rounds collecting refuse. This method of waste disposal is not only ineffective but also causes inconvenience to the people around. This is because before the waste is transported to the dumping site, it has to be stored in a certain area, generating foul smells and constituting an eyesore, not to mention an unhygienic environment.

In public places like shopping malls, the sight of the refuse bin making rounds around the so called luxurious and exclusive place is an eye sore. It's also like sharing a walk way with a dump bin and can cause inconvenience to pedestrians and shoppers in a high traffic area. Existing methods of refuse collection in malls can damage the image of the mall which investors try painstakingly to create.

In office buildings, the waste that is mostly made up from papers still being handled manually by a cleaner assigned to clear up a certain floor or department, before being transported away from the building. Inevitably, piles of waste bags accumulate around the office is not a presentable sight and to work in a place where bags of refuse are lying around, besides being unhygienic, causes great discomfort.

Waste Segregation & Recycling made easy

Everybody knows the importance of recycling and over the years, a lot of effort has been put to educate people and raise awareness. But the truth is, it takes a lot of time to change people's mind set about waste disposal and some even find that classifying the trash before disposal creates a hassle.

Puzer Xmit makes waste recycling much easier and more effective. This is possible because waste is classified at the point of disposal not after disposal. Thus wet refuse doesn't mix with the dry refuse, making its value to be higher than mixed refuse, because no additional costs needed to separate them into different categories. In that way, you can turn your waste into a more valuable asset instead of just disposing them.
